

Purple Shelf Club

"A community where self-publishing fiction authors and bibliophiles can combine their love of literature and travel"

Even if you don't celebrate, I wanted to share the love and call out to your bookworm heart this Valentines Day. And what better way to do that than to give you a free book...

Okay, the chance to get a book plus some other goodies.

That's right, I'm talking about a giveaway!

From today, February 14, until February 28, 2023, you can enter to win an autographed copy of Birdwatcher by Ann Greyson, a $50 Amazon gift card, and 4 printable bookmarks.

This book is my favorite so far by Ann (I have a copy myself). Don't miss out, if you like thrillers, this will be a favorite read of yours.

Talk soon,

Alexis Miller

About Birdwatcher by Ann Greyson

Genre: Horror fiction, Thriller/Crime fiction, Ghost fiction, Paranormal fiction

Gillian and Lance Wincoff travel from Watchung, New Jersey to spend a week in a cabin in East Stroudsburg, Pennsylvania, an idyllic setting in the Poconos. It's the perfect vacation with their 12-year-old daughter, Abby, an avid birdwatcher. When Abby suddenly disappears from the cabin, Monroe County Sheriff Andy Kirkman and his team of deputies begin the search.

There are no signs of Abby, the facts in this case are hard to find. With the election approaching, Detective Philip Silverwood from the Pocono Mountain Regional Police Department inherits the case. Despite Sheriff Kirkman's impending retirement, he is willing to do whatever it takes to find out what happened to Abby.

The sad truth is, Abby fell victim to serial killer Joey Marks. Her spirit is restless, unable to cross over, and she begins to haunt the cabin, where her body was buried. Complications arise when Gail comes to that cabin to write her first novel, Murder in the Poconos, because murder is only part of the story.
